

PSBB Students plant Tulsi Saplings in Temple

Traditionally it is believed that one must sit in a temple to imbibe the positive energy. But on 16 December 2017, students of PSBB, T. Nagar learnt to invoke more than one sense to feel divinity. The students joined hands with Parampara to plant Tulsi saplings in Madhava Perumal temple, Mylapore. It not only marked the beginning of Marghazi month, but also paved way to creating a positive atmosphere in and around the temple invoking the sense of smell, the divine smell of Tulsi plant.

A sacred pooja was conducted for the Tulsi plant that was placed just before Goddess Andal. Following which, a Tulsi Vandanam was performed by our students. Later, they planted tender Tulsi saplings in the temple premises.

The pleasant Marghazi breeze carried the musical notes, vibrations and chants of the students as they performed the Tulsi vandanam.

Students also carried placards and spoke about the importance and benefits of the Tulsi plant.

The Tulsi Vanam set up in the temple is a field of energy that people would henceforth be charging themselves with. A divine experience indeed!
