A Natural Green Canvas

"The aim of art is to represent not the outward appearance of things but the inward significance."

The first session of the Art Club began virtually on a beautiful Saturday afternoon i.e. 26th June 2021. We were waiting with excitement to see what this aesthetic club had to offer us this year and we were getting ready to enjoy art in its truest form. We greeted the teachers and then there was a lively interaction amongst the members. Next, one of our teachers shared her screen to show us a demonstration of how the art of 'Leaf Painting' was to be performed. We could see the amount of effort and time that had been put into the making of that video and the outcome of it looked splendid! We are very grateful to our talented teachers who guide us through this fulfilling experience.

The art of 'Leaf Painting' has many lessons for us to learn. It encourages us to have patience, precision and tenderness which are very much required in order to come out with a wonderful piece of art. All the above are necessary because a leaf is very fragile and will tear off easily if not handled with care. Our teachers provided us a peaceful space virtually enabling us to bring out our creativity and our passion for the paint brush while we de-stressed ourselves in the process of leaf-painting. All the students enjoyed trying this dainty art and made exquisite, unique pieces worthy of display. I thank our teachers for this experience and look forward to our next gathering in July.
